thowled in unholy giee. Mrs. Lawson gazed with wondering eyes at the demionstration.

Young Carmichael remained in the room for half an hour after Mrs. Lawson began to testify. He stood being called a liar about once a minute until everybody in the room was gazing at him. Then he fied, telling the attendant at the door that he was going out to get a drink. Evidently he found a good place for he did not return.

Mrs. Lawson wept profusely as she told of sending her little boy to her husband on his birthday and how her husband kept the boy. A glass of water was handed to her. As she held it to her lips the chattering of her teeth against the edge could be heard all over threatened to have Carmichael arrested. This was the signal for an uncomfortsable few minutes for her husband.

"The only man I ever tried to have arrested," said Mrs. Lawson, dramatically, "was my husband. These liars have told here how I came to the bloarding-house one right with a cut ilip. I did have a cut ip, but I was not intoxicated.

"That night I went out with the man inost disorderly.

Mrs. Lawson insisted upon going into lengthy explanations, and was repeatedly cautioned by the court that she had a lawyer to protect her interests.

T wish I had studied law," she cried. "I'd try my own case."

Lawyer Mooney flushed a deep crimson and stood for a moment in profound thought while the audlence howled in unholy glee. Mrs. Lawson gazed with wondering eyes at the demonstration.

Young Carmichael remained in the room for half an hour after Mrs. Lawson continued the court on the court own, but the corridors outside.

Q. Can you repeat the conversation?
A. I can't give it in detail. Hayes told Kennedy he ouight to be liberal, as he was going to get a lot of money out of the business. He said Kennedy could easily afford to pay to have the Meagher bid taken out of the way. Kennedy offered to pay $10,000, but Hayes said it was not enough. He considered that the bid was very valuable. Hayes said there were six interests in the bid was very valuable. Hayes said there were six interests in the bid was very valuable. Hayes said there were six interests in the bid worth $5,000 each. Kennedy finally agreed to pay it, and notes were drawn. Then Michaels winted to know where he came in, and they finally agreed to add $4,000 for his share.

Q. What was that for? A. I don't know. I suppose for the use of his office.

Q. As a matter of fact was it not.

Q. What was that for? A. I don't know. I suppose for the use of his office.

Q. As a matter of fact, was it not agreed then and there that in consideration of this $14,000 the Meagher bid was to be withdrawn? A. I suppose that must have been the understanding.

Q. I don't want your opinion. Was it not the positive, direct understanding that the Meagher bid should be withdrawn as a result of that deal? A. Yes, that was it.

Campbell's testimony was regarded as confirming the theory that there was a conspiracy to get the contract for Kennedy. Evidence on this point yesterday caused William Rand, jr., attorney for Dr. Woodbury, to suggest that the record be sent to the District-Attorney. Campbell's story connected Warden Patrick Hayes and David Michaels with the alleged conspiracy.

Mr. Rand said yesterday that he was Mr. Rand said yesterday that he was the cause of my trouble, and coffee. I laughed at the thought that coffee hurt me, but she insisted so hard that I finally had some Postum made.
